

- Complete checklists revealed heterogeneous bird associations near recorded spawn.
- Detection and conditional flock-size patterns often differed among species.
- Surf Scoter associations were positive in both main coastal regions.
- Six registered event windows did not share one community-wide trajectory.
- Non-null specificity comparators limited simple ecological attribution.